Genealogical Research Report (sample)

DATE	4 March 2022 (Updated: 30 Mar 2022)
CLIENT	Client A1 [LIVING] [Address Private]
PREPARED BY	Kristin M. Carter-Groulx
SUBJECT	Biological parent of Client A1 [LIVING] of British Columbia, Canada
OBJECTIVE	Using documentary and DNA evidence, identify the biological father of Client A1 [LIVING] who was named at birth as [PRIVATE] [LIVING] and adopted into the [PRIVATE] family.
BACKGROUND SUMMARY	The client intends to find his biological paternity and approached me on 7 Jan 2022 by email with a photograph his biological mother had given him of his suspected father. I had worked previously with the same client to help him find his biological mother in 2017, and we discussed paternal options but had nothing to go on. Using his own results from Ancestry DNA, the client had several paternal matches showing there was a 1C or 2C relationship – but nothing closer. The client asked me to work with those DNA matches and help him narrow down a surname for a potential biological father. He was adopted at birth and given the name [PRIVATE] [LIVING] by his biological mother. His biological mother has contributed limited information, as well as information obtained by a social worker given to the client when he was of age.¹

¹ Interview of Client A1 [LIVING] (via Facebook Messenger) by researcher Kristin M. Carter-Groulx, 7 Jan 2022. Discussion of suspected biological father information given by his biological mother, [LIVING] and description of suspected biological father given by an unnamed Social Worker.

RESTRICTIONS OR LIMITATIONS

60 hours research and reporting, no travel. Repository closures due to COVID-19 limited availability of certain records, DNA data limited to client's results and matches.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS:

The research objective for this session has been successfully met.³ The biological father of Client A1 [LIVING] is determined to be [PRIVATE], son of Joseph Victor Exilus Lemieux and Parmélia Hénault. This is using and comparing DNA evidence to existing family trees, and connecting with DNA matches of the client. He shares a close DNA relationship with several cousins on Ancestry and has connected with those open to sharing their trees and/or DNA testing.

Several surnames kept appearing when navigating family trees with the client's matches:

LEMIEUX, HÉNAULT, QUIRION, BASTIEN

After many possible outcomes and three months of the client and I working on his tree, he suggested he connect with a few of these DNA matches who were predicted 1C-2C relationship to see if any of them would be open to testing. The family was supportive and offered help. They suspected it might be "Bert" they told him. I had narrowed it down to a possibility of one or two of the brothers, and Bert was one of them (Cyril was the other). The client connected with DNA match No. 11-LL and met together in person and afterwards she agreed she would do the DNA testing via AncestryDNA. Many weeks later, test results came back from Ancestry:

DNA match. Half sister. 1699 cM, 24% shared DNA

This confirms paternal parentage for the biological father for both DNA match No. 11-LL and the Client A1 [LIVING]. Please see report dated 4 Mar 2022 to see notes before the last DNA test taker was added.

To note: Actual client's documentation reveals [LIVING] and [PRIVATE] notes. This document has been privatized and abridged.

³ This session comprises of total research done between 7 Jan 2022 and 30 Mar 2022, and updated research from 4 Mar 2022 report

INITIAL RESEARCH NOTES GIVEN:

Information given by social worker:

The client was given the following non-identifying information in 1991 from a social worker who said he interviewed his biological father at the time of the client's birth.⁴

[PRIVATE]

Information compiled by client⁵:

SUMMARY:

[PRIVATE]

Information given by biological mother:

[PRIVATE]

INITIAL RESEARCH THEORIES:

The client said his closest match on AncestryDNA was DNA match No. 1-JTF, who is about his age. He said she was open to helping him determine if one of her uncles could be the birth father.

At this time, I was presented with the information that the DNA match No. 1-JTF's father's name is [PRIVATE], born 1924, and was Icelandic. As the surname Thorsteinson might have sounded "Norwegian" to the client's other and her info related to the person named "Don" she believed to be the father, the surname was investigated further. Because the Thorsteinsons lived in Blaine, Washington and at some point, moved to BC, it looked like a viable option. She was also the closest atDNA match with 828 cM shared. It was very likely one of her uncles would be a match for the client's biological father. (see: Appendix B: RESEARCH NOTES related to the surname Thorsteinson and Appendix C: RESEARCH NOTES related to the surname Telford).

A second email we discussed his next closest DNA match No. 2-RG, whose family lived around Vancouver and Victoria, BC. The client said DNA match No. 2-RG's maiden name was Lemieux and said at that time he had AncestryDNA matches with other Lemieuxes. The client mentioned he went to school in Surrey with classmates with the surname Lemieux. (see: Appendix D: RESEARCH NOTES related to the surname Lemieux).

⁴ The client shared this information with me in an email 29 Jul 2017 during a previous genealogy research session in 2017 while looking for his biological mother.

⁵ Email dated 29 Jul 2017

DNA STUDY

METHODOLOGY

For this study, Client A1 [LIVING] is DNA match (A1). All information in this study is based on data available through Byron's autosomal DNA (atDNA) test results at AncestryDNA. All reported shared amounts of atDNA in this report are from AncestryDNA and are filtered using their Timber algorithm.⁶ Contact occurred with several of the DNA matches, as previous conversations had occurred between A1 and DNA match No. 1-JTF in 2017.

This DNA study uses centimorgans (cM) — a measurement of shared autosomal DNA (atDNA) to support relationships as genetic. Each person inherits 50 percent of their atDNA from each parent. It represents about 25 percent from each grandparent, about 12.5 percent from each great-grandparent, and approximately half again for each previous generation. Based on these approximations, different genetic relationships will share predictable ranges of centimorgans. For this DNA study, the closest amount of centimorgans we are able to use is from No. 1-JTF with 828 cM and a possible 1C-2C. This was our benchmark.⁷

After the report done on 4 Mar 2022, participant No. 11-LL tested with the AncestryDNA test kit and came back a match for half-sister and 1699 cM, 24% match. I have added her results into the DNA match table.

Since inheritance patterns can vary between siblings, so do the atDNA segments. Each sibling might inherit a larger portion of DNA from each ancestor's background than their other siblings.⁸

⁷ To note, this benchmark was used prior to adding participant No. 11-LL's results, who was added after 4 Mar 2022 report.

DNA MATCHES

In addition to DNA match No. 11-LL being a half-sister, the following evidence supports the relationship of the client (A1) to the biological father, [PRIVATE], son of Joseph [PRIVATE]:

DNA STUDY NOTES

- ❖ It was discovered during the course of the DNA Study, DNA match No. 1-JTF does not know her biological father's name. When we began our research, her known father was [PRIVATE]. Later into our research, it was disclosed her father was [PRIVATE]. A thorough search of both the Thorsteinson and Telford surnames was conducted, however there was no atDNA connection found to either surname with my client. DNA match No. 1-JTF believes her father to be [PRIVATE], son of Joseph [PRIVATE] and Parmélia Hénault. Her biological mother is known to her.

⁹ DNA match No. 11-LL was added at the very end of our 3-month research and confirms parentage of [PRIVATE] as father of both her and the client (A1).

- ❖ Triangulating the location where the client’s biological father might fit in the tree was used comparing centiMorgans of the aforementioned DNA matches. A test pedigree tree with several hypotheses was formed. Using DNA Painter,¹⁰ I was able to see several hypotheses and narrowed down which possible cousins the client should try connecting with.
- ❖ Eight DNA matches, including the client, represent eight lines of descent from Joseph [PRIVATE] and Parmélia Hénault. Their amounts of DNA shared with the client are consistent with their documented relationships. Three DNA matches, represent three lines of descent from Louis Henri Hénault and Marie Amanda Bastien. Louis Henri Hénault is the father of Parmélia Hénault, who married Joseph [PRIVATE].
- ❖ I created a test tree “[PRIVATE]” at Ancestry to connect the known DNA matches and how they relate to the client. I looked strongly at the common ancestors found with the client’s DNA matches. Several names kept popping up:

CONCLUSION:

The documentary evidence supports the relationship of the client (A1) to the biological father, Albert Joseph Lemieux, son of Joseph [PRIVATE] and Parmélie Hénault. This couple are the biological grandparents of the client (A1), as confirmed in my original hypothesis report dated 4 Mar 2022.

I have traced the remainder of this branch of the Lemieux tree back to 1295 France and presented new information related to this branch directly.

The remainder of this report presents a detailed look at all documentary evidence, including images, transcriptions and translations from French to English. I have included maps also of the areas the Lemieux families lived and traveled to and from.

Please note: All images in this report are used for reference only, and may not be reproduced and distributed publicly. A source list has been provided with this report.

LINEAGE FOR LEMIEUX, de 1295 Rouen, Normandy, France

The lineage of the Lemieux family branch begins around the turn of the 14th century in Rouen, Normandy, France. The name was seen as Le Mies and then Le Mieux, before becoming Lemieux. This particular branch left France after the bubonic plague in the early 1600s and landed in Quebec, first in Quebec City and then in Lauzon (Lévis), Quebec until about 1850. The newer generations travelled west towards Saskatchewan and finally settling in British Columbia, Canada around Vancouver and Abbotsford. All documents enclosed are for informational and reference purposes only and may not be reproduced.

Looking more closely at the children of Joseph Victor Exilus Lemieux and Parmélia Hénault, there are several males which could potentially be the client's biological father. Two out of the three youngest men died before the client was conceived, so they were ruled out.

Continuing with research, also keeping in mind the notes from the social worker about the biological father being born about 1918 Alberta. There would be potential for an unknown Lemieux son to fit into this tree. I focused efforts on researching the four brothers (shown in dark blue in the table below) who were alive when the client was conceived and could be possible father matches. I marked them dark blue also when comparing hypotheses matches on DNA Painter.

One of the benefits of working with the RootsMagic program is the ability to color-code ancestors or descendants of a chosen person in the tree. In this instance, all ancestors of the DNA matches were color-coded where they actually fit into the tree. This showed the lines they came from in purple. There were many branches which led to the same set of Grandparents and GGrandparents, with the four surnames of Lemieux, Quirion, Hénault, and Bastien continuing to appear.

The image shows a handwritten document in French, likely a marriage record. The top portion of the text is crossed out with several horizontal lines. The legible text describes a marriage ceremony performed on January 7, 1771, in the parish of St. Joseph. It mentions the groom, Joseph Lemieux, and the bride, Angélique Bourassa, along with their parents and witnesses. The document concludes with the phrase "lecture faite" (reading made) and lists the signatures of Jean Baptiste Begein and Michel Lemieux.

SONS OF THE UNICORN

By Jacques Lemieux

Up to recently, there were two important unknowns surrounding the two first Lemieux's to settle in America. For one, Pierre disappeared somewhere between 1661 and 1662, in a shipwreck, according to oral family tradition and to the opinion of some historians. But there is still no concrete proof to confirm that belief. On the other hand, Gabriel has voluntarily all through his life tried to hide any information about the circumstances of his birth.

In his marriage contract, August 11, 1658 with Marguerite Leboeuf before public notary Audouart, he presents himself as the son of Louis Lemieux and Marie Luguan, widow of Pierre. If so, he could be Pierre's brother, sharing the same mother.

Gabriel also lied repeatedly about his age. In the 1666 census, he says he is forty years old, which would mean he was born in 1626. In the 1681 census, he's 67 years old! Which would mean he was born in 1614, his death was in 1700, he was reported to be 80! In fact none of those assertions are correct. He couldn't be born in 1614, year of Pierre I and Marie's wedding, nor in 1615 when Jean was born, in 1616 when Pierre II was born or in 1629 when Marie, the last child of Pierre I and Marie Luguan, was born and baptized in Rouen.

The unveiling of this mystery is now done, due to long and thorough research by Madame Anne Osselin in Rouen and Jacques Lemieux. Gabriel's secret has now come out! His birth certificate has been found!

"This Wednesday, tenth day of April 1630, was baptized the son of Anne Le Cornu, before Jean le Cornu, her father, said Anne having had carnal relation, on the verbal promise of marriage with Thomas Le Mieux, now deceased, the infant being named Gabriel by Anne le Cornu, widow of Jean le Parent, aunt of said Anne, mother of the child, and by Guillaume Baniguot, father of the second wife of said Jean le Cornu, godfather."

(St-Etienne la Grande Église, BMR 116, 158-1, ADSM NE 2026, 1589-1615)

So Gabriel was born in 1630, the son of Thomas, Pierre brother, who died before Gabriel's birth, and of Anne le Cornu, daughter of Jehan le Cornu playing cards craftsman (maître-cartier). So he is Pierre's cousin. To better understand the chain of events surrounding Gabriel's story, one must go back to the historical events of that era and the customs of old Rouen.

ROUEN, THE PORT CITY

In the XVth, XVIth and XVIIth centuries, Rouen was already an important seaport involved in international trade. It required a diversity of professional and technical manpower to support its commercial activities. That manpower was highly corporatist, each profession or craft having its own closely controlled guild. Membership in a guild was almost hereditary, sons being trained by their father and helped by them to meet the entrance requirements. Another way, a lot more pleasant, was to marry into a guild or corporation by marrying the daughter of a corporate member. Gilles, the father of Pierre I and of Thomas, chose this avenue, marrying Ysabeau Ango of one of the richest and most powerful trader families in Rouen. Pierre himself entered the cooper trade under the guidance of his father-in-law, Jean Luguan. Thomas, then, could not hope to go the same way, at least in a near future. Actually, at that time, he was attracted more to arts and wanted to become a “cartier”, a playing card craftsman. Card games had been introduced in France from the Orient by the Crusaders and became quite popular during the long Hundred-year war. Since the cards were hand-painted in those days, the “cartier” craft often ensured glory and fortune and even a reputation at the international level. But Thomas had an extra interest in card making since his girl friend, Anne le Cornu, was the daughter of an already well-known card craftsman, who already owned a prestigious trademark and belonged to a certain nobility. Again another Lemieux was on his way to enter a guild through marriage. By accident, or on purpose, who knows, Anne found herself pregnant before the marriage had been held. But fate would prevent them from becoming husband and wife. The plague was a recurrent phenomenon in Europe, beginning in the XIVth century. Port cities were particularly vulnerable, bringing in infected rats from foreign ports. So Rouen was a prime candidate for epidemics. And one of those hit the port city from 1619 to 1632. Port activities were closed down for a while and many families chose the safest way to avoid the plague. They moved out of the city, far into the less polluted countryside. That was the avenue chosen by Pierre I and Marie Luguan from 1617 to 1624. Then they moved back to Rouen, as the epidemic seemed to be over.

Unfortunately, it wasn't so. In 1629, both Pierre, his mother Ysabeau and his brother Thomas died, so now we had Marie Luguan, widow of Pierre, left with a young baby, Marie. Her stepmother Ysabeau Ango and her stepbrother Thomas were also both dead. And there was young Anne le Cornu with a little Lemieux on the way and whose mother had also died in 1620. It is not clear yet who in the family took care of Anne and her son, Gabriel, in the early years. It could have been “Aunt Florence” in Pont-Audemer or Marie Luguan who remarried to Louis, her husband's cousin! One thing is sure; at 17, he was present at Pierre's wedding in Quebec in 1647. It is possible that he may have come over to New France with Pierre, his cousin, in 1643, at the age of 13.

WHAT ABOUT THE LE CORNU FAMILY ?

For the descendants of Gabriel, it is worth taking a few moments to expound on the story of the le Cornu family. This family included many branches and seemed to originate in Bosc-Roger and to be descended from Robert le Cornu, squire, lord of Espreville. At this stage of our research, here is the lineage for the moment. The heirs of Robert le Cornu and of his priest brother, Messire Jehan, would be Philippe, dead without any descendant and Robin, who is not mentioned as heir, which would mean he also left no descendants. Remain, early in the XVIth century,

Martin, Robin l'aîné, Colin et Robin le jeune. But who was the father of Robert, father of Jehan, father of Anne, the fiancée, is not yet known. No doubt Madame Anne Osselin will eventually find some answers.

An interesting find is that of the seals used by the Cornu family since 1580. They are described in the Livre de copies des scels of 1650. With minor variations, the seal includes the following elements: a black oval frame with red border; within that frame a gold bordered blue drape in the shape of an escutcheon with indentations, on which sits a white unicorn holding a red apple between its forelegs; the whole topped with a gold crown. The motto around the oval reads: "Tout venin la Licorne déjetant " and on the bottom rim the name Pierre le Cornu is inscribed.

The unicorn was a fabulous animal generally depicted with the body and head of a horse, the hind legs of a stag, the tail of a lion and a single horn in the middle of the forehead. In the Middle Ages it was a symbol of purity. It's twisted horn, similar to the narval tooth, was believed in those days to detect the presence of venom or poison when dipped into a liquid, hence the motto: "All venom the Unicorn detects "

The descendants of Gabriel can rightly and proudly call themselves the "Sons of the Unicorn".

Table 4: The following is an excerpt from the article "Gabriel and Marguerite ran a cabaret" by Donna Alfieri⁷⁷

Gabriel and Marguerite ran a cabaret
by Donna Alfieri

A second branch, more prolific than the first exists, whose members can boast of being the descendants of Gabriel, the half-brother* of Pierre. When the latter decided to settle in Québec, he brought along Gabriel who was about 14 years old. On September 3 1658, Gabriel married a native of Champagne, by the name of Marguerite Leboeuf.

Gabriel Lemieux and Marguerite Leboeuf apparently ran a cabaret, or a sort of neighborhood bar. However, the syndic des habitants accused them of selling wine above the fixed price, and on 22 April 1665 the couple was fined 10 écus by the Sovereign Council for this infraction of the city ordinances. Cabaret owners were often accused of worse infractions, such as allowing debauchery and other scandalous acts in their establishment, and sadly Marguerite was not spared these worse accusations.

In 1667, she was accused of adultery and of keeping a "maison close." On 26 April 1667, Gabriel appeared before the Sovereign Council that day, claiming that Marguerite had been a good and blameless wife since they were married, and that the accusations against her were false and were nothing but the attempt by their enemies to "disturb their peace." He demanded that those making the accusations be named and that the Council charge said persons with slander and award Gabriel and Marguerite appropriate damages.

The Sovereign Council continued its investigation into the allegations that Marguerite kept "women and girls for the purpose of committing the crime of lewdness," leaving the question of adultery between Marguerite and Gabriel. The whole matter was probably just the machinations of overzealous creditors. Marguerite appeared before the Council, asking for three years to pay off all her debts. She needed the time to raise the money, for Gabriel had gone to France the previous year with merchandise in the amount of 2,400 livres to sell. However, his ship was captured by the English while going from La Rochelle to Rouen, all the merchandise was confiscated and Gabriel even had to borrow money to return to Québec. This situation left the family in such an impoverished state that they were hounded by creditors who threatened to sell their furniture and put the family on the street, "thus depriving of the means to support her family." Nothing seems to have come of the matter, for it is not mentioned further in the records of the Sovereign Council.

Gabriel Lemieux was baptised 10 Apr 1630 at St-Etienne-la-Grande-Eglise in Rouen, Departement de la Seine-Maritime, Haute-Normandie, France. To escape the bubonic plague, Gabriel left Rouen, France and immigrated between 1643 and 1647 to “Nouvelle-France” (Quebec) Canada to work with his cousin Pierre Lemieux (son of Louis Lemieux and Marie Lugan).

He was the first immigrant for the Lemieux surname to land in Canada; First in Quebec City originally, and then later to Lauzon, Quebec, Canada. Gabriel Lemieux is listed as a tonnelier for his profession. A tonnelier is a cooper, a barrel manufacturer. (see the following image for more detail on this profession)

Le Tonnelier | The Cooper

A Cooper ("Un tonnelier", watercolour painting (artist unknown), Bibliothèque nationale de France)

The tonnelier, or cooper, manufactured barrels (large wooden receptacles generally used for storing liquids) from timber that was usually heated or steamed to make it pliable. Barrels had to be made of quality wood, free of defects and vermin. They also had to respect official gauges and be able to contain the quantity of wine, beer or brandy expected. Coopers were frequently linked, by blood or marriage, with brewers, taverns and wine merchants.

The cooper's occupation required him to make barrels on demand and deliver them to his clients. From the 17th to the 19th century, many industries relied on barrels for the transportation of their goods, so the cooper's role in society was important. During the fur trade years, some coopers went west to practice their trade. Others sold their barrels to fish, flour and wheat salesmen, brewers, and biscuit and cookie makers, many of whom transported their goods by boat. Some merchants hired on coopers to work full-time in their businesses.

Even on a personal level, residents needed barrels. Wells were rare in New France, so water was collected from rivers and other sources using barrels.

He married Marguerite Leboeuf (dau of Guillaume Leboeuf and Marguerite Millan, Bourgeois of the village of Troye in Champagne, France) 3 Sep 1658 at the Notre-Dame Basilica in Quebec, and had 5 issue. There is a notarized statement on his marriage contract to Marguerite Leboeuf, stating that he is the son of Louis Lemieux and Marie Luguan, so until recently, it was believed that they were his biological parents.⁸²

After his first wife's death, he married Marthe Beauregard (dau of Jean Beauregard and Marie Desmarais) 26 Nov 1671 also at the Notre-Dame Basilica in Quebec, and had 5 issue. Thereafter, they moved to Lauzon

Thomas Lemieux (1590-1629) and Anne Le Cornu (1610-1630) engaged abt. 1626 France – death by bubonic plague

Thomas' son, Gabriel was baptized on 10 April 1630, in Rouen, France in St-Etienne-la-Grande-Eglise. According to his baptismal record in the registrar's office at the church, he is the illegitimate son of Thomas Lemieux and Anne Le Cornu. He was baptized in the presence of Anne's father, Jean le Cornu. It states that Anne and Thomas were carnal souls, dwelling together with the verbal promise of marriage.

Gabriel's father, Thomas, died of the bubonic plague before his parents could be married, so he was raised by his aunt and uncle Louis Lemieux and Marie Luguan (her first husband, Thomas's brother, Pierre, also died from the plague).

ADDITIONAL RESEARCH DISCOVERIES (Appendixes)

Appendix A: RESEARCH NOTES related to “DON NELSON” search:

Looking closely at the photograph of the WWII Naval sailors, there is a stamp on the back indicating that the photo was taken at: Castle Studios, 2, Queen St., Cardiff. It was deduced, same-day technology did not exist then (1940s) so the five men would have had to have returned on a later day to pick up the photos. They must have been amid an extended port stay in Cardiff, Wales.

Several attempts were made to locate all versions of the name “Don” including Donald and Gordon, alone or in conjunction with the surname “Nelson” (once it was given to us). I searched for the 1921 census in Alberta, especially around the towns in Bow River which may have connected info with the biological mother’s birthplace of Drumheller, Bow River, Alberta.. There were no conclusive leads with these attempts.

Appendix B: RESEARCH NOTES related to the surname THORSTEINSON search:

The client shared with me info he had received in 2017 from DNA match No. 1-JTF.⁹¹ He said she has five siblings, and one has passed already. The messages showed the Thorsteinson family was of Icelandic and English heritage. The client shared with me more notes about all of the aunts and uncles of DNA match No. 1-JTF. One of them had the name “D. Thorsteinson” and we pursued relevant searches, but did not find anything conclusive which would link to the client.

I organized a pedigree chart for DNA match No. 1-JTF showing the grandparents, and they did not match with the other common ancestor matches of surnames Lemieux, Hénault, Quirion, or Bastien, which other matches had. I wondered at this time if perhaps DNA match No. 1-JTF’s father was an unknown son of one of those surnames.

I found a Facebook group for the surname Thorsteinson and its head admin was researcher Sue B. [private]. The client visited the group and connected with Sue B. [private]⁹² with the intention of sharing the WWII Naval photo given to him by his biological mother and asking if she can compare it to any relatives on the Thorsteinson side she’s come across in her research.⁹³

I compared notes with researcher Sue B. [private] and the client. It was determined Thorsteinson was not the correct surname as there were no common ancestors appearing which matched with any of the client’s DNA matches.

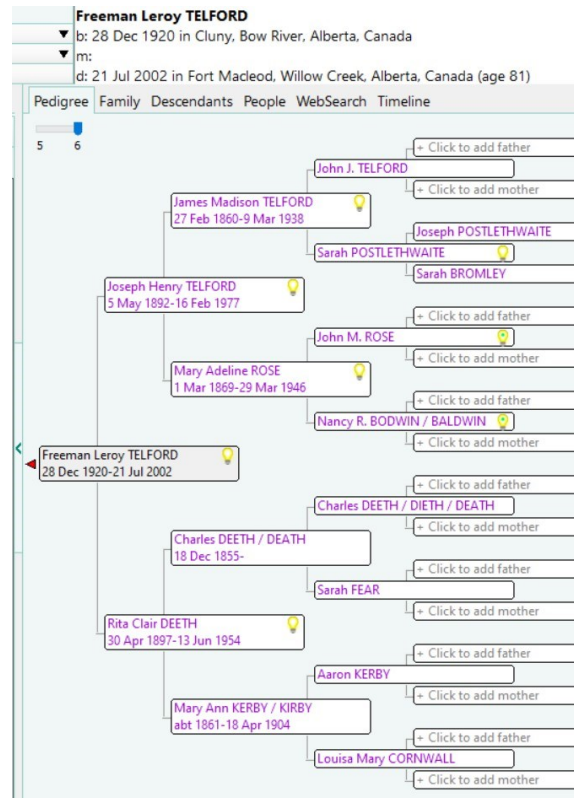

⁹¹ Noted in an email from the client 9 Jan 2022

⁹² This person is living.

⁹³ Email to client 12 Jan 2022

Appendix C: RESEARCH NOTES related to the surname TELFORD search:

At this time DNA match No. 1-JTF told the client she found out recently she had a different birth father than the rest of her siblings (confirmation ruling out Thorsteinson surname). Her Aunt had said his name was [PRIVATE]. Looking up info on the Telford family confirmed they lived in the area at the same time as the client's biological mother, which centered around the towns of Gleichen and Cluny, Bow River, Alberta. The client's biological mother lived in Drumheller, Bow River, Alberta.

Research for the Telford tree included BMD records from the BC Archives.

However, once again there were no DNA matches showing up with these surnames and any of the ones from the client's AncestryDNA matches. We still wanted to rule out the possibility of a half relationship somewhere in the tree which may link back with the Telfords. We decided at this time to look more closely at the surnames Lemieux, Hénault, Bastien, and Quiron, which were showing up in the trees of the client's AncestryDNA matches.

Appendix D: RESEARCH NOTES related to the surname LEMIEUX search:

After the surnames Thorsteinson and Telford both didn't bring about the answers needed to match with the client's AncestryDNA match common ancestors for grandparents and great-grandparents, we looked strongly at the Lemieux surname.

Because of the uncertainty of DNA match No. 1-JTF's paternal lineage, I used the next match. The client's next strongest DNA match on Ancestry was DNA match No. 2-RG at 644 cM and a predicted 1C to 2C. Her maiden name was Lemieux – one of the names which kept appearing in the common ancestors, so I felt this would be a good place to start to find a link to the client. Her tree lineage corresponds with her DNA matches, so there does not appear to be any illegitimate DNA on her parental lines, so her tree is a good benchmark. Looking at the atDNA matches, I feel confident that the client's paternal biological grandparents are the same as DNA match No. 2-RG. They are Joseph Victor Exilus Lemieux and Parmélia Hénault.
